Here come the war brides

With more eligible bachelors fighting overseas, young women were swept off their feet when the GI jocks and Canadians in their dashing uniforms arrived for training. The foreigners offered romance, excitement and escape. Despite the disappointment of the US authorities and many parents, within months these whirlwind romances were often sealed by marriage before the handsome strangers departed for war.